About Steve's Training

"Steve Boyd is a premier trainer in the areas of public speaking and presentations. His material, wit and professionalism combine to form a unique, fascinating and approachable style to a skill set that every employer and employee needs!"

- Steven Browne, CDS Associates, Inc.

"Steve Boyd is the standard that I measure other lecturers by. He is engaging and practical, but most importantly, he truly cares about his audience.... Most people would rather crawl into a snake-pit than speak in public. After a session with Steve, those people would find the courage to stay out of that pit."

- Barry Weisman, RSM McGladrey

About Steve's Keynote Speeches

"Really and truly — you were the best speaker we have EVER had! The humor was great and the message meaningful..."

- Judith B. Henry, TCHFMA

"Your portion of the program got many positive remarks, including words like 'wonderful' and 'informative and entertaining' and 'Boyd was great!' Your presentation got the most positive responses."

- Dennis Huffer, Tennessee Municipal Attorneys Association

About Steve's Auctions

"The UCAAMP Live Auction earned more than ever before and everyone had a fantastic time, whether watching or bidding. You made it fun!"

- Don Connley, University of Cincinnati

About Steve

Earning a Ph.D. in speech communication at the University of Illinois was just the beginning of Steve Boyd's commitment to communication. He has written several books and published dozens of magazine and journal articles. As a professor at Northern Kentucky University, he's taught speaking and listening courses since 1972 and is still one of the most popular teachers on campus. His entertaining style of teaching appeals to all ages and backgrounds.

Steve used to speak because he loved competition. In 1970, he won the Toastmasters International speech contest, and since then he has coached state and national high school speech champions. He also coaches several local CEOs in their presentation skills.

Steve's passion is his family, and his obsession is improving people's communication skills. He enjoys training for a variety of companies and associations, but he especially loves giving keynote or after-dinner speeches. Steve enjoys making people laugh and giving them useful information at the same time. He will make your event stand out in participants' minds as a highlight for years to come!
